

Professional Learning & Networking

What's working well to improve outcomes in low-SES schools?

The Education Equity Alliance is a not-for-profit led by educators, focused on a more equitable education system. We know that our low-SES school communities are full of leaders, teachers and support staff passionate about improving outcomes for their young people and achieving real change.

Join us for an engaging and interactive workshop to:

Identify (and celebrate) what's enabling positive change for your school community

Share practice and learn from colleagues.

Test new tools that support improvement in complex school environments (incl. activating student and teacher agency)

Collaborate to identify and test shared improvement priorities for low-SES communities (for both schools and the wider system)

It's an opportunity to test and refine your school improvement priorities for 2025 and to plan for their effective implementation.

Following the workshop, participants will have the opportunity to join a School + System Improvement Network to further this work and learning in 2025. More information here.

Key Details

Register here - Places are limited.

When:

Friday 22 November 2024, 9am to 4pm

Who:

School Principals, Assistant Principals and Middle Leaders across Victorian Low-SES schools (ICSEA below 1000)

Where:

Orygen (35 Poplar Rd, Parkville 3052)

Cost:

$200 per participant (excl. GST)

The Facilitators

Tim Warwick is a previous teacher and principal and Founder of the Education Equity Alliance.

Kerrie Dowsley led St Albans Secondary College for the past 17 years to outstanding results and now works as an education consultant.

Megan Corcoran is a previous teacher and school leader and now leads the Wagtail Institute.

Fiona McKenzie and Eve Millar lead Orange Compass, a consultancy focused on improvement in complex systems.

